Mr. Peter White

Dear Mr. White,

Thank you so very much for your nice note with respect to my letter to [redacted]. I appreciate your thoughtfulness with respect to me, but most of all I appreciate what you are doing for [redacted]. These friends and associates of ours in Vietnam have had a very difficult experience, but it is the support and assistance of good Americans such as you that will enable them to make the new life which they must make here.

Thank you again.

Sincerely,

/s/ W. E. Colby

Dear Mr. Colby:

In the course of giving odd-job employment to
I saw a fine, manly letter of encouragement you sent him which made me want to root for the beleaguered writer as much as for the dispossessed addressee.

We are doing what we can for him, and we all admire the spirit with which he faces his new situation.

Sincerely,

Peter White

I was pleased to learn from your recent letter that you and your family are safely out of Vietnam and are well on the road toward resettlement in this country. You are in many ways fortunate as the majority of your compatriots have not progressed as far toward resettlement as you have in the short time since the defeat of the valiant forces of the Republic of Vietnam.

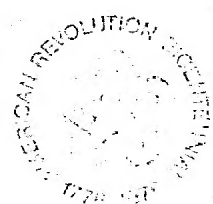

The events of the recent past continue to weigh heavily upon my mind. It is true, as you say in your letter, that we all strove to keep the Republic of Vietnam free from the oppressions of communism. That we failed has been difficult for me to accept too.

But your new life will be filled with challenges that will help you place the past to the back of your mind. You must now learn a new culture, a new language, and new skills. Fortunately the Government of the United States has a system to assist you in that process. English language training programs are underway. Job counselling and skills training programs are being undertaken. Post secondary school assistance is being made available.

These programs are not under the control or influence of my own organization, but I am certain that the governmental agencies and officials involved are just as concerned and dedicated toward doing the task as I would be. If your sponsor is not aware of these programs ask him to find out about them through the Voluntary Agency he used to arrange his sponsorship of you. If they do not have full information at the office in your town, they can obtain it from the Inter Agency Task Force for Vietnamese Refugees in the Department of State.

(EXECUTIVE SECRETARY)

I wish you success as you undertake these new challenges. Your past life has proven you have the inner abilities to achieve that success.

Sincerely,

/s/ W. E. Colby
